Preliminary Notice.

The Cedar Hill Seminary came into existence in the spring of 1837—thus completing, during the current month (March 1857), a series of forty semi-annual sessions—a period of probation before the public eye, sufficiently extended to entitle it to the claim of being a "well tried Institution."

It was commenced under slender circumstances of promise or anticipation. The senior proprietor, at that time an invalid worn down with the labors and confinement incident to conducting a select female Seminary for thirteen years in the city of Philadelphia, withdrew to the country to recruit his wasted energies by a temporary sojourn in a more bracing and purer atmosphere. That temporary sojourn proved the initiative of a new engagement—a twenty years labor—resulting in the present Cedar Hill Seminary.

No extraneous means have ever been received or sought, for its support—or factitious methods resorted to promote its success. It has been the constant aim of the proprietor that Cedar Hill education should stand only on the prestige of its own intrinsic elements—that what it has done for those who have been trained under its influence, should, on their departure from its halls, quicken the arrival of others to fill their places.

New Organization.

The close of 40th Session constitutes the terminus of a series, of no inconsiderable length, when applied to the date of human labors in a single direction. The Principal of the Cedar Hill Seminary though now enjoying vigor of health and spirit, deems it inadvisable that the perpetuity of the Institution should lean for its chief support on a prop now occupying the shady side of three score years. He has therefore, agreeably to notice given its patrons, associated with himself Mr. Albert Jackson, late of Manchester, N. H., as Junior Principal, and Mrs. Helen D. Jackson, an Alumnæ, and for several years a Teacher in the Institution, as Junior Vice Principal.

Supported by these fresh co-laborers, he indulges the hope that Cedar Hill prospects, interests and usefulness will rise on the scale of real merit and public esteem, equal to the highest expectations of its warmest friends.

The Object.

The Proprietors of the Cedar Hill Seminary are not ambitious of conducting the most popular, most fashionable, the largest, or most showy Female Seminary in the land, well knowing that these attributes do not always identify the best; and such they devoutly wish and earnestly endeavor that the Cedar Hill Seminary shall be accounted, at least in the regard of all those who enter the inner circle of its influences.

Nor is it the design of the Proprietors that the Cedar Hill school should ever be designated a "Female College" or a "Female Collegiate Institute."

Indeed a Seminary under a competent and experienced Principal, having exclusive control of the course of studies and methods of instruction, aided by a good teaching department, with due time allowed, can easily avail itself of every desirable advantage afforded by a college; and with the counsels and assistance, which the domestic Institution only can supply, such a seminary can better fulfil all the proper objects of female education than any college arrangements however ample and imposing.

But to instruct and discipline the intellect, to correct errors, and remove prejudice, to inculcate right principles and right conduct, to cultivate habits of usefulness, a becoming deportment and agreeable manners, above all to imbue the mind with a constant and pervading influence of the morality and religion of the Holy Scriptures, and to do these thoroughly and effectually, constitute the leading objects of education at Cedar Hill. The responsibility for right results, in this Seminary, rests where in the opinion of the Proprietors ought to rest, not on parties who can have but second hand knowledge of its affairs, but on the Principal, and those engaged directly in its labors, and personally interested in its character and success.

Arrangements.

In order to accomplish the objects above specified, the Institution contemplates the two-fold department, of the family and the school.

I.—THE FAMILY.

The domestic department is designed to embrace and develope the idea of a well-ordered family on a large scale, having careful reference

1st. To health and the several conditions on which it depends: as plain and wholesome food, seasonable rest, open air exercise, with suitable recreations, cultivation of cheerful temper, and withal due measure of mental engagement.

2nd. Regard to regularity and order, in the successive engagements of each day, careful attention to use of time and money, clothing and school material, that everything be ready when wanted.

3rd. Cultivation of right dispositions as the basis of becoming and agreeable manners, and the latter, more for sweetening social and domestic intercourse, than for public display; also directing the attention to the proper character and uses of conversation.

4th. Devotional duties, embracing daily instruction in moral and religious subjects, with careful presentation of the motives that should influence to the practice of duty.

5th. Epistolary correspondence, visits and visitors.

6th. Attention to the person, to habits of cleanliness, neatness and regard to what is proper and becoming in dress, and general external appearance; not forgetting good manners.

These subjects are severally regulated by rules, customs, example of teachers, lectures, occasional and incidental instructions of the Principal and his Lady, according to views which are the result of more than twenty years' experience in the education of young ladies.

It is proper to remark that this department is accounted at Cedar Hill, as neither the last nor the least subject of Seminary responsibility.

II.—THE SCHOOL.

This department, though based on the foregoing, is a distinct organization. It contemplates three divisions.

1st. The Initiative.—This division comprises pupils whose previous progress requires that they should be especially engaged in elementary studies; as Reading, Writing, Spelling, Defining, Arithmetic, English Grammar and Geography.

2d. The Progressive.—This Division comprises pupils prepared by previous knowledge of the above-named studies, to enter elementary classes in History, Botany, Zoology and Astronomy; to assume a more advanced course in Arithmetic, Grammar and Geography, also to engage in a first course of Natural Philosophy and Rhetoric.

3rd. THE ADVANCED.—This Division comprises pupils who are prepared for a higher course in the last-mentioned studies, also for a course in due order of succession in Algebra, Geometry, Mental Philosophy, Rhetoric, Chemistry, Geology, Physical Geography, Archaeology, Butler's Analogy and General History.

Remarks.

In order to present the plan of organization more distinctly, it may be proper here to remark, that the whole Seminary course contemplates a sojourn of three years, or six consecutive sessions. If, however, a pupil enters the Seminary, under the age of 13, she will always be expected to devote an additional session, or perhaps two sessions, for more thorough study of the advanced portions of the course. No pupil is ordinarily expected to possess maturity of mind, sufficient to engage in the studies of the finishing course under 16 years of age. In short, it is held rarely judicious to enter on the studies of the last two sessions under that age.

Each section has its own appropriate teacher who is charged with all the studies and exercises assigned by the Principal to such section; not only to give instruction, but to see that the lessons are duly prepared, and the exercises faithfully performed, to report delinquencies, and at close of each session, to make a confidential statement to the Principal in writing, relative to the fitness, or unfitness, of the several members of her section for advancement.

The Complete Course.

A full course of Education at Cedar Hill usually requires three years, or six semi-annual Sessions. The Initiative occupies usually one session; the Progressive, two sessions, and the Advanced, three.—Pupils are, however, admitted, on examination, into a grade of the Progressive division, and sometimes, though rarely, into the third grade of the Advanced.

The sections of the advanced division are in part under the personal instruction of the Principal, and uniformly in the higher course of each study. Arithmetic, Grammar, Geography, Penmanship, Reading and Original Composition are pursued in gradational order throughout the course. Botany, Astronomy, Physiology, Geology, Zoology and Organic Chemistry are usually taken up as Summer studies. Natural Philosophy, Inorganic Chemistry, Rhetoric, Mental Philosophy and Moral Science are regarded as more suited for the Winter Sessions.—The other studies are subject to no restriction. Most studies pursued in this Seminary are taken up twice; 1st, in a primary course confined chiefly to text-book details; 2d, in a higher course, embracing experiments, lectures, and application to all accessible sources of information; also to reviewings, resumes or compendiums of the most important studies. Some of these methods are believed peculiar to the Cedar Hill course of instruction.

EXTRA STUDIES.

Music, Drawing, Painting, and the French, German and Latin languages are taught by accomplished and skilful instructors. The lessons are given and practising hours assigned, so as to interfere as little as possible with the lessons and exercises of the ordinary course. The maxim inculcated in these as in other studies, is "so learn that you may teach."

TEXT BOOKS.

Green's Grammar; Newman's Rhetoric; Young's Night Thoughts; Mitchell's Geography; Emerson's Arithmetic; Mattison's Astronomy; Johnson's Natural Philosophy; Johnson's Chemistry; Eschenberg's Classical Literature; Olney's History of the United States; Pinnock's Histories of Greece, Rome and England; Weber's General History; Wood's Class Book of Botany; Chamber's Zoology; Chamber's Geology; Somerville's Physical Geography; Lambert's Physiology; Paley's Natural Theology; Nevin's Biblical Antiquities; Playfair's Geometry; Day's Algebra; Bridge's Conic Sections; Upham's Mental Philosophy; Whewell's Elements of Morality; Whewell's Bridgewater Treatise; Butler's Analogy; Holy Scriptures. In the Latin Language: Gould's Latin Grammar; Jacobs' Reader; Virgil; Cæsar, &c. In Greek: Goodrich's Introduction; Greek Testament, &c. In French: Addick's Elements; French Guide; Value's Ollendorf's Grammar; Colloquial Exercises; Recueil Dramatique; Bord du lac; Guide to French Composition; Fleming's Dictionary; Le Grand-pere, &c.

Teachers.

The Teachers employed are Young Ladies, who have received their education at Cedar Hill, and who have been for at least one year under the personal instruction of the Principal.

An Additional Session, sometimes a year, has been appropriated to the object of especial preparation, by those who contemplate an engagement as Teachers in the Seminary.

DIPLOMAS.

Pupils who complete a course of studies in this Seminary, to the satisfaction of the Principal and Teachers, receive at the close, as the honors of the Institution, a Diploma, certifying their attainments, conferred on the occasion of a semi-annual public examination.

In connection with Seminary honors and Diploma certifying them, we take occasion to remark that nothing is more common than to find Young Ladies of high standing in their classes at the time of leaving Seminary, adorned even with its brightest honors—suddenly abandon all solid and useful reading and allow themselves to be absorbed in the light and superficial literature of the times, sure to enfeeble the mental energies, vitiate the taste, degrade the elevated and refined moral sentiments inculcated and cherished with the utmost solicitude in the course of a careful education. To remedy, in some measure, so mortifying a result—as that of a highly educated young Lady becoming a "paltry novel reader," we propose to confer on the graduates of Cedar Hill a second and to be awarded to young Ladies who shall have within three years after first honors—carefully read: 1st. Rollin's Ancient History, Hallam's Middle Ages and Lord's Modern History. 2d. Classical Antiquities, Commenced at Seminary, an approved work on Chemistry, Geology, Botany and Physiology. 3d. The leading poetical productions of Pope, Milton, Young and Cowper. 4th. Cowper's correspondence and review of Butler's Analogy.

SESSIONS.

The school year is divided into a Summer and a Winter Session, each consisting of five school months, or twenty weeks. The Summer session commences on the 1st Wednesday of May; it contains no holiday except the 4th of July. The Winter session commences on the 1st Wednesday of November; there will be a recess of one week at Christmas—no holiday except the 22d of February.

VACATIONS AND HOLIDAYS.

The duties of the Seminary will be suspended as above indicated, during the months of April and October. Pupils from a distance, however, have the privilege of remaining at the Seminary during vacation and Christmas recess, at moderate Boarding charges.

LECTURES.

Lectures are given by the Principal and occasionally by the Senior Teachers, on General Reading, Elocution, Rhetoric, History, Botany, Poetry, Zoology; also, on Chemistry, Natural, Mental and Moral Philosophy, and the Fine Arts. The Lectures are usually in systematic courses; some are designed for summary review, others where text-book information appears to be defective, are supplementary.

PECUNIARY CONSIDERATIONS.

In regard to pecuniary considerations, it is the object of the proprietors to occupy a medium ground, not to rank with the "cheap schools," usually mushroom enterprises, whose cheapness is perhaps their only recommendation;—nor on the other hand, with the "expensive and fashionable schools," claiming affinity only with the monied aristocracy. In short it is designed to be so moderate, that while the real aristocracy in mind and good sense, of all classes, can afford it their patronage, the most fastidious shall have nothing of which to complain.

Terms.

1. Board, Washing, Parental care and Supervision, and Tuition in the English Studies for Summer Session of 20 weeks,	$70 00
Board, Washing, Parental care and Supervision, and Tuition in the English Studies for Winter Session of 20 weeks,	75 00
2. Music on the Piano or Guitar, each	15 00
3. Use of instrument for practising,	3 00
4. French, German and Latin Languages, each	10 00
5. Drawing Lessons,	7 00
6. Painting in Water Colors,	10 00
7. " " Oil "	15 00
8. Oriental and Grecian Painting each,	7 00
9. Payable in advance $40.00. Balance to be paid at the close of the Session.

1. In case of sickness, requiring, in the opinion of the attending physician, the discontinuance of a pupil during any part of the session, the unexpended balance of money paid in advanee, will, at the close of the Session, be refunded.

2. Pupils may be admitted at any time; they will, however, be held engaged to continue to the end of the session, unless something occurs rendering it manifestly expedient that they should leave.

3. The proprietor reserves the right of modifying the terms in favor of Clergyman's daughters; of orphan young ladies, not in affluent circumstances; of young ladies with limited means, edueating themselves for teaehers; and also, of any parent, guardian or responsible agent, furnishing two or more pupils.

4. Books, Music, Stationery, Drawing and Painting materials furnished at Philadelphia retail prices.

5. Pupils furnish their own desert or teaspoons and towels. Articles of apparel to be marked with name in full.

Seminary Premises, &c.

The Cedar Hill Institution is located on the Philadelphia and Harrisburg Railroad, (a section of the Pennsylvania Central Railroad,) three hours' travel from the former place, and one from the latter—half a mile east of Mount Joy—with privilege of daily mails, an Adams' Express, and a Telegraph Office.

The location was selected, and the Seminary edifiee planned and erected, by the present proprietor. The building, including basement, is four stories high.

The Grounds, comprising 30 aeres of varied soil and surface, are interseeted by the Chicquesalunga, and possess a pieturesque charaeter. The Seminary edifice, oeeupying an elevated site, fifty feet above the Creek, here flowing, in brisk current, one hundred yards distant—the Railroad Bridge, stretching at equal elevation aeross the ereek and adjaeent valley—several acres of natural wood, extending fifty rods along the east bank, furnishing a pleasant and inviting reereation ground, eomprising hill-side and shade, dell and stream, projeeted walks and Pavilion, conspire to lend to the seene their several eharms. A rich Botanieal loeality, and rare facilities for eultivating a taste in Florieulture, afford it additional interest and attraction. The principal part of these grounds have but reeently come into the possession of the proprietor; and, of course, all the projeeted improvements are not eompleted. In their present condition, however, they afford opportunities for open air exercise, as cheering, varied and attraetive as eould well be desired.

The healthfulness of the location is attested by the interesting faet, that during twenty years there has been no instanee of siekness of a pupil from any disease attributable to loeality.

In short, for salubrity of air, amplitude and pleasantness of immediate premises, richness of surrounding scenery, facilities of access, and communication with places at a distance Cedar Hill presents rare advantages, and may vie, in these respects, with perhaps any Seminary in the country.

Remarks.

The features of the Cedar Hill Seminary, to which, it is believed, its successful operation is measurably attributable, are—

1st. Its regulations are not borrowed from the usages of other similar Institutions; in almost every instance they have resulted from passages in its own history. Actual occurrences, showing the need of particular rules, have occasioned their introduction. Hence none of them are supernumerary or useless. Though not so fixed as the laws of the Medes and Persians, they have, for several years, undergone very few alterations.

2nd. Its Teachers are all Alumnae of the Institution, and therefore, better known to the Principal to be competent to the discharge of the duties assigned them, than they otherwise could be; an arrangement which enables the Principal, besides attending to the supervision and discipline, to discharge the duties of a daily Teacher of the advanced classes of the Seminary.

3rd. The Cedar Hill Institution, from its location, draws nearly all its pupils from a distance, and they are consequently residents in the family. Hence, the tone and character of the Seminary is received from those who are more especially subject to its direct and intrinsic influences.

SPECIAL REQUEST.

It is particularly requested that young ladies expecting to become pupils in the Cedar Hill Seminary the ensuing session will make it a point to be at their post within the first four days from the opening of the session, in order that a complete organization may be effected during the first week.

RELIGIOUS PRIVILEGES.

Besides the daily seasons of religious instruction and worship enjoyed in the Seminary, there are five churches holding stated worship on the Sabbath, in the adjacent village, viz: 1 Presbyterian, 1 Lutheran, 1 Methodist, and 1 Bethel; at either of which the pupils, at the instance of parents or guardian, may attend, accompanied by a teacher. They are required to attend public worship once on the Sabbath, health and weather permitting. A Biblical lecture is given at the Seminary, on Sabbath evenings, by the Principal; and chapel worship is held whenever the school family is prevented by the weather from attending public worship.

THE BIBLICAL LECTURES COMPRISE:

1st. A course on Sacred Archæology. 2nd. On Fulfillment of Prophecy. 3rd. On Evidence of Revealed Religion. 4th. On Sacred Biography. 5th. On the Decalogue. 6th. On the Scope and Objects of Divine Revelation.

About 20 lectures are given in each course.

Testimonials.

PHILADELPHIA, March 16th, 1837.

As it is the intention of Mr. DODGE to remove from this city, we feel pleasure in publicly giving our testimony, that as a man and a Christian, his character here stands deservedly high. He has long conducted a Female Academy of a very superior grade, with great credit to himself, and satisfaction to his patrons. He carries with him our respect and best wishes.

REV. THOMAS EUSTACE,
CHARLES M. WURTZ,
JOHN M. ATWOOD,
REV. H. A. BOARDMAN,
W. GIBSON, M. D., Prof. Surgery, U. Pa.

The undersigned take pleasure in commending the Cedar Hill Seminary to the confidence and patronage of the Christian community. We regard the REV. N. DODGE, Principal and Proprietor, by his just and enlightened views of education, his enthusiastic devotion to the subject, and his long experience in teaching, eminently fitted to cultivate the minds, the hearts and the manners of his pupils. The Institution is thoroughly Protestant and Evangelical in its character and influence.

REV. T. MARSHALL BOGGS,
REV. R. W. DUNLAP.

MOUNT JOY, March, 1849.

"THE YOUNG LADIES' LYCEUM INSTITUTE.—Rev. N. Dodge, A. M., Principal; situated on the banks of the Chiquesalunga creek, near the village of Mount Joy, is perhaps, as regards accommodations, kind attention to the wants of the pupils, facility for acquiring a competent and thorough knowledge of all the various branches and accomplishments taught at similar institutions, if not superior to, at least surpassed by none other in the country."—History of Lancaster county, page 453.

We, the subscribers, having daughters who have been for two or three years pupils in the Cedar Hill Seminary, feel a pleasure in giving the testimony of our satisfaction as to the fidelity and ability with which the Institution has been, and is at present conducted. We cheerfully recommend it to public attention and regard, believing it worthy the reputation it has hitherto enjoyed.

JOSEPH S. BRENEMAN, Esq.,
JOHN M. WHITEHILL,
REV. J. WINEBRENNER,
S. S. PATTERSON, Esq.

MOUNT JOY, March, 1848.

We, the subscribers, having hitherto patronized the Institution of Mr. DODGE, situated near Mount Joy, Lancaster county, respectfully recommend it to the favorable consideration of the public. We consider Mr. DODGE well qualified for the sphere of duties in which he is engaged. His Institution is situated in a pleasant and healthy part of the country, and his building is large and commodious. We consider this Institution deserving of patronage.

GEORGE W. HARRIS, Esq.,
HON. L. REILY.

HARRISBURG, March, 1848.

Extract from a Communication published in the Family Presbyterian:

There is in this place a flourishing Female Academy, under the care of the Rev. N. Dodge, a highly accomplished and successful teacher. The school was established about fifteen years ago, by the enterprising Principal, who erected a large and commodious edifice, admirably adapted to the purposes of such a school, in a beautiful situation, just out of a village, near the end of the splendid railroad bridge, which here crosses Little Chiques creek. The school has for a number of years enjoyed a deservedly high reputation. I have met with few men, who seem to be better qualified to be at the head of a Young Ladies' Seminary than Mr. Dodge. The Institution is easy of access, terms reasonable, instruction in all the departments of an accomplished female education, thorough, and the government kind and parental. May the worthy Principal always secure that patronage which he so richly merits.

REV. DR. M'LAIN, Principal Lafayette College.

In addition to the names attached to the foregoing testimonials, the Proprietor of Cedar Hill Seminary respectfully refers to the gentlemen following nnder the head of References, all of whom have had daughters, or near relatives, from one to six years under his care.
